Palmerston & Waikouaiti

Palmerston, located about halfway between Oamaru and Dunedin, is a great place to stop and stretch your legs. Attractions include heritage trails, a butterfly and bird haven, fishing, crafts, shops and cafés.

For a great view, climb Puketapu, the sacred hill that overlooks the town. Macraes Mine is the largest active gold mine in New Zealand.

Don't miss Waikouaiti – this town was intended to be Otago's main settlement, as it was once a busy whaling town. Today, Waikouaiti is known for servicing the region's farmers, its historical farm buildings, and also as a tranquil beach resort. It's a great place to enjoy water sports, particularly surf casting, and is a safe swimming spot.

Curious & Beautiful DUNEDIN

Dunedin is often said to be the best-preserved Victorian and Edwardian heritage city in the southern hemisphere – you will feel like you have stepped back in time in this historic city. Evidence of this heritage is obvious at every turn. The striking architecture is scattered throughout the city and gives Dunedin a distinctive feel that you will instantly fall in love with. Dunedin was founded on the hard toil of whalers, gold miners and migrants from Scotland (Dunedin is the old Gaelic word for Edinburgh), and its heritage is easily seen in the local museums, churches, historic buildings and stately homes.

Present-day Dunedin is a city of culture and education, and home to one of New Zealand's largest universities, the University of Otago. The city bursts with youth – more than 25,000 students add a special vibrancy to this city and contribute to its distinctive culture.

Dunedin puts on a show for visitors with a wide range of exciting things to see and do, from impressive architecture, wildlife and golf courses to fantastic restaurants and shopping. The Octagon is the heart of the city and is lined with several attractions including St Paul's Cathedral and the Dunedin Public Art Gallery, plus an eclectic mix of restaurants, cafés and bars. There is even free wireless internet in the Octagon!

Amazing Architecture

The architecture here is nothing short of astonishing – the sheer beauty and detail of these constructions will blow you away. Dunedin's historic Victorian and Edwardian buildings haven't just become museum pieces – the city cherishes and still uses most of them. Check out the handsome architecture of these heritage buildings: the Dunedin Railway Station, said to be New Zealand's most photographed building; Larnach Castle, New Zealand's only castle, on the Otago Peninsula; the University of Otago, designed Gothic-style in 1878; Olveston, a Jacobean-style mansion with guided tours; the First Presbyterian Church with its 54m spire; the Municipal Chambers, designed in 1878, and St Paul's Cathedral, a beautiful church made of Oamaru Stone.

Tastings and Tours

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory has a lot to answer for when it comes to ideas of how chocolate is made. Roald Dahl would have you believe pint-sized chocolatiers run around singing songs in unison, and the chocolate factory is shrouded in secrecy. In Dunedin, you can get to the bottom of this chocolate-making myth. Cadbury chocolate is made here, and the factory conducts tours (and tastings).

Tours of the Cadbury Chocolate Factory provide an interesting look at the history of chocolate both over time and in New Zealand, combined with a tour through a working factory. A highlight of the tour is the phenomenal chocolate fall, housed in a five-storey silo, where you will see tonnes of melted chocolate cascade right past you. Loaded with fun facts and complete with tastings, this is a must for chocolate lovers and is ideal for families.

If chocolate isn't your thing, how about a brewery tour? These have got to be one of life's great inventions. Not only does it allow for the sampling of that fantastic product we call beer, but it also provides a valuable history lesson, which legitimately qualifies a traveller to say they have 'partaken in local culture'.

A trip to the Deep South is not complete until you have visited the Speight's Brewery, where tastings and tours are held daily. Tours here are popular – they not only provide an insight into the history and workings of the brewery but also provide some quirky facts about Dunedin too. Learn about the origins of Speight's and its rise to become one of the leaders in its field. The tour concludes at the tasting room, an ideal way to finish!

Talk to the Local

Betty Mason-Parker, Tour Guide

We asked a local to tell us about her favourite attractions in and around Dunedin...

I love spending a day in the city. I'm an art fan, and Dowling St offers four art galleries, plus there's the Dunedin Public Art Gallery in the Octagon. Lure in Lower Stuart St has jewellers' workshops and an exquisite shop, where art and fashion combine in jewellery.

I'm a fashionista - I love George St for Dunedin fashion including Tanya Carlson, Company of Strangers, Plume and Belle Bird. In Moray Place I often visit Mild-Red, Silkbody, Tamsin Cooper and Dada. Shopping for pre-loved clothing is an art form in Dunedin. Two of my top picks: the Shop on Carroll and Collectibles.

A visit to Pt Chalmers is one of my must-do's. Just 10km from the stadium, there's something for everyone - galleries, quirky second-hand and excellent gift shops. The library has free WiFi, the main street offers several good eateries and parking is free.

A right turn at the port takes you to Back Beach for a lovely picnic spot. A left turn at the port takes you to Carey's Bay, home of the fishing fleet and the famous Carey's Bay Hotel seafood restaurant. I usually carry on to Aramoana Beach for wildlife and postcard-worthy views.

For a different route back to Dunedin, I like to follow the signs to Orokonui Eco-Sanctuary for a walk in beautiful bush filled with birdsong and a nice cuppa before reaching SH 1 and heading back to the city.

Flourishing Eco-Tourism

Dunedin is arguably one of the best places for eco-tourism, as it's one of the few places in the world with such a diverse range of wildlife all within easy reach of the city. The breathtaking natural environment here, in particular the Otago Peninsula, is a haven for wildlife, with sandy beaches, sheltered bays and rugged hills. The magnificent views and multiple photo opportunities will undoubtedly be a highlight of your peninsula experience.

The peninsula supported a seal and whale-hunting industry in the 1800s. After these industries subsided, the peninsula's wildlife slowly replenished itself. Today, the peninsula's birds and animals are protected and visitors can observe these animals in their natural habitat.

Seals, sea lions, yellow-eyed penguins and the northern royal albatross can all be sighted here. There are recognised local tour operators and guides who, together with the Department of Conservation, have carefully nurtured the peninsula's spectacular wildlife.

Must-Know

The best way to see this diverse range of wildlife is to take either a guided tour or a guided cruise. There are many land tour operators in Dunedin who will get you up close to the wildlife of the peninsula, as well as give you interesting facts and local information.

If you are exploring the peninsula yourself, there are a few rules to be aware of. Make sure you don't position yourself between seals and the water, keep well back from sea lions as they aren't afraid of you and can move fast, and finally, try not to let the yellow-eyed penguins see you – they are shy birds, and you may frighten them off.

Tee Time

The first golf club in the country was formed in Dunedin in 1871, at a time when equipment such as clubs had to be imported from Britain. The first games were played at Caversham, and later Mornington, though bankruptcy soon meant these clubs dissolved and later established again at Balmacewen. It didn't take long for the golfing bug to catch on, and over 140 years later, courses and clubs now dot the country. There are more than 45 courses in Otago alone, and New Zealand is represented at the highest levels of both amateur and professional international golf.

Taieri Gorge

All aboard! The Taieri Gorge Railway is a train ride with a difference, beginning (or ending) at the architecturally outstanding Dunedin Railway Station. Once the train chugs out of the station, sit back and relax as your train negotiates this narrow river gorge, through tunnels and over viaducts while soaring above the river. The train ride takes you through some isolated but always scenic areas before arriving at Pukerangi, and then Middelmarsh, where you can connect with the start of the Otago Central Rail Trail if you wish. With live commentary, friendly well-informed staff, sightseeing stops, modern and traditional carriages and a fully licensed snack bar, this is an all-weather experience not to be missed.

A Vision of Past & Present

When you've had your fix of wildlife, Otago Peninsula offers another unique experience at Larnach Castle, New Zealand's only castle. Surrounded by gardens of international significance, Larnach Castle is a splendid sight to behold. Its native wood, Italian marble, English tiles and Venetian glass interior is absolutely stunning. Naturally, the views are spectacular, with Aramoana to the north, the beaches of St Kilda and St Clair to the south, the city centre to the west, and to the east – the mighty albatrosses gliding above Taiaroa Head. This is also the place to go for a decent ghost yarn; in fact, Larnach Castle is full of them. With a history of suicide, disease and affairs within its confines, it's hardly a surprise that endless stories of ghostly activity emanate from here. That said, there is also accommodation available.

On the Road: Day Trips from Dunedin

Middlemarch is at the foot of the Rock and Pillar Ranges. A big drawcard for the town is the Otago Central Rail Trail, which starts or ends here. Check out New Zealand's only salt lake, Sutton Salt Lake, on Kidd's Road. Facilities in the town include a general store and takeaways, craft shop, café, a hotel and bistro, and a PostShop.

Not far from Dunedin International Airport and ideal for a day trip from Dunedin is Mosgiel, a great base for exploring the Otago region. Visitors are well looked after with a range of cafés and restaurants, and the town is well known for its racecourse and aero club. If fishing is your sport, you will be happy to know that the Taieri River is packed with trout, and golfing enthusiasts will enjoy the many golf courses within a five-minute drive of Mosgiel. Check out the Hollywood-style town sign on the hill!

Otago Peninsula

Dunedin's spectacular Otago Peninsula is a definite highlight of the region – you don't want to miss this, especially if you're a wildlife and nature lover. It's one of the few places in the country to boast such a diverse range of wildlife, from frolicking seal pups and lazy sea lions to thriving populations of rare yellow-eyed penguins and northern royal albatrosses. Watching these enormous birds with their up-to-three-metres wingspan swoop in to feed their young at the Royal Albatross Centre on Taiaroa Head will be a sight you'll never forget.

Later, as the sun sinks low on the horizon, yellow-eyed penguins bob up and down in Otago Peninsula's thundering surf before catching a wave to shore. These extraordinary birds share space with the rare Hooker's sea lion and the New Zealand fur seal. Due to the fragile ecology on the peninsula, all visitors are asked to consider utilising the local guides and tour operators.

The peninsula's greatest appeal is its diversity – it's packed with everything: charming shops and galleries, a real castle, awesome views at every turn, deserted beaches, an abundance of picnic spots, and of course, wildlife. Boatsheds are a constant sight along the road and add to the beauty. While often winding, it's a pleasant drive and far from demanding. Please note that no freedom camping is allowed on the Otago Peninsula.

Cheap and Cheerful

Travelling on a tight budget? Don't worry; there are plenty of fantastic options to keep you occupied in this exciting city. Aside from the gorgeous natural scenery and majestic architecture that costs nothing to explore, there are many attractions that are either low-cost or free. Visit the Otago Farmers' Market, held every Saturday at the Dunedin Railway Station, for a great way to save yourself some cash, plus stock up on delicious local produce, chat to the growers and mingle with the locals. Other options include packing a picnic to take to one of the city's beautiful gardens, heading down the Otago Peninsula to check out the wildlife, exploring the vibrant Octagon and compact CBD, grabbing your togs and heading to the hot salt-water pool at St Clair or reminiscing at the New Zealand Sports Hall of Fame.
