Dunedin is New Zealand's only destination that provides cultural riches and architectural heritage, complemented by a natural environment and rare wildlife all within an easy drive from the central city.

Dunedin is New Zealand's leading University City and medical training centre. With this intellectual pool of speakers and delegates on hand, Dunedin should most definitely be a consideration for your next conference.

The city features exquisite examples of Victorian and Edwardian architecture, with many of the hotels and venues housed in boutique heritage buildings. Dunedin has facilities to host conferences from the intimate to 2300 delegates.

Dunedin Convention Bureau

The Dunedin Convention Bureau offers FREE impartial advice and assistance to organisations and associations who are considering Dunedin as the destination for their next event. We can help prepare bid documents, coordinate site inspections and offer recommendations for conference programmes.

The background image shows a richly decorated interior room. The walls are covered in ornate, patterned wallpaper. A large, ornate wooden doorway is the central focus. Above the doorway, a decorative mantelpiece holds several blue and white ceramic plates and vases. To the left, a large framed painting hangs on the wall. In the foreground, a round wooden table holds a large bouquet of white and red flowers. A patterned rug covers the floor, and a wooden chair with a patterned seat is visible. A large green plant is on the right side.

MUSEUM

Your first glance at Dunedin will tell you it is a city of gardens. The Town Belt cuts a green swathe across the width of the city, with native forest, exotic trees and a wealth of sports fields and recreational reserves. Dunedin's cultural heritage runs deep, especially for a city which is young by world standards. One of Dunedin's great strengths is the way it lives with and values its heritage. Rather than turning its fine Victorian and Edwardian buildings into museum pieces, the city cherishes and uses them, allowing you the opportunity to visit a number of them. Here the streets hum vibrantly with colour and culture, and the beauty of nature can still be found - everywhere. It is a city of rare charm.

Dunedin - The Garden City

New Zealand is internationally recognised for its prestigious gardens.

For people with a love of gardens, Dunedin is well placed to exceed their expectations.

The New Zealand Garden Trust has been established by New Zealand's national horticultural body, the Royal New Zealand Institute of Horticulture. Before a Garden can display the NZGT logo, it is inspected by a team of independent assessors who are looking for the creativity and attention to detail that makes these gardens stand out from others.

Established in 1863 and moved to its present site in 1867, the Dunedin Botanic Garden is New Zealand's first Botanic Garden and is internationally recognized for its excellence as a public garden as well as its botanical collections. Garden of International Significance.

Set high on the hills of the Otago Peninsula is Larnach Castle and its splendid garden, reflecting over 40 years of dedication and hard work by its owners and staff. The Castle has also been acknowledged with the accolade Garden of International Significance. People don't have to be a garden expert to enjoy themselves; it's about the atmosphere and the history, and being with nature. (Refer to page 27).

Begun in 1871 in a hidden valley, Glenfalloch Woodland Garden in Russell Bay on the Otago Peninsula offers rhododendrons, azaleas, magnolias and fuchsias set in a natural glen. Garden of National Significance.

Dunedin's newest garden is The Dunedin Chinese Garden which opened in late 2008 and immediately became the recipient of acclaim and awards. Built by The Dunedin Chinese Garden Trust, this is one of only three truly authentic gardens created outside China. Garden of National Significance.

★★★★★

Please allow sufficient time to visit these most splendid gardens.

Dunedin Botanic Garden

Dunedin Chinese Garden

Otago's Chinese history began in 1864 and 1865 when Chinese goldseekers in Victoria, Australia were invited to rework the Otago goldfields by the Otago Provincial Council and business leaders. Thus began Chinese emigration to New Zealand, the third ethnic wave to this country after the Polynesian and European. Chinese numbers reached 4,200, or 6% of Otago's population in 1871, and a national peak of 5000, or 1% of New Zealand's population, in 1881. On the goldfields their presence seemed all-pervading.

As the gold ran out, the Chinese moved into towns throughout New Zealand. By the 1920s Chinese leadership and population was concentrated in Wellington and Auckland; Dunedin was already the 'old' centre of Chinese settlement. Like Dunedin itself, however, the city's Chinese community has retained a degree of influence in national affairs beyond its numbers. At its core is a small, tight-knit group of families, many of whom have a long history in Otago. The Dunedin Chinese Garden is a memorial to that distinctive history.

The Garden is emblematic of the long-term relationship that Dunedin and the Otago region have with China, building on the past but looking to the future. It was first proposed at the time of the city's sesqui-centennial celebrations in 1998 when a Dunedin Chinese Garden Trust was created to create a fitting, permanent, recognition of the Chinese who first came to Otago during the 1860s gold rushes and stayed on to become a part of the Otago community. The original scheme was somewhat more modest than what has eventuated. The expanded version was driven by Dunedin's sister city relationship with Shanghai, established in 1994. This relationship recognises the strong influence of Chinese on Otago history, and has been developed through the involvement of the local Chinese population.

This led eventually to the Shanghai Municipal Government and the Shanghai Museum becoming partners in the Chinese Garden project. Their involvement brought to the project a degree of expertise that could not have been accessed otherwise as well as vital contacts in highly specialised crafts and construction techniques. It meant ultimately that the Garden itself was constructed by artisans in China, disassembled, shipped and reassembled in Dunedin at a cost of about $6.5 million. The result is a late Ming, early Ching Dynasty Scholar's Garden, using authentic Chinese materials. In addition to the hand-made wooden buildings, the Garden features hand-made tiles, bricks and lattice-work and hand-finished granite paving stones. The Dunedin Chinese Garden has thus become what is described as one of very few 'authentic' Chinese gardens outside China, and the only one in the Southern Hemisphere. This outcome is entirely due to the sister city relationship between Dunedin and Shanghai.

Baldwin Street

Baldwin Street according to the Guinness Book of Records is considered the world's steepest residential street. It is located in the suburb of North East Valley, 3.5 kilometres northeast of Dunedin's city centre. (Refer to Central City Map pages 56 & 57)

A short straight street a little under 350 metres (1,150 ft) long, Baldwin Street runs east from the valley of the Lindsay Creek up the side of Signal Hill towards Opoho, rising from 30 m (98 ft) above sea level at its junction with North Road to 100 m (330 ft) above sea level at the top, an average slope of slightly more than 1:5. Its lower reaches are only moderately steep, and the surface is asphalt, but the upper reaches of this cul-de-sac are far steeper, and surfaced in concrete (200 m (660 ft) long), for safety on Dunedin's frosty mornings. At its maximum, the slope of Baldwin Street is about 1:2.86 (19° or 35%) - that is, for every 2.86 metres travelled horizontally, the elevation rises by 1 metre.

Annually a charity event has also been held that involves the rolling of over 30,000 individually numbered Jaffas (spherical confectionery-coated chocolate sweets). Each Cadbury Jaffa is sponsored by one person, with prizes to the winner and funds raised going to charity. This event follows a tradition started in 1998, when 2,000 tennis balls were released in a sponsored event raising money for Habitat for Humanity.

Baldwin Street has become one of Dunedin's most popular tourist attractions, visited by more than 100,000 people each year.

Make sure you seek out the recently installed plaque, placed in acknowledgment of the feat of roller skating UP Baldwin Street in 1988 by a local enthusiast.

Please park on North Road and do not drive vehicles, especially campervans into Baldwin Street; there is nowhere to turn around or exit.

Cadbury Events

Dunedin Cadbury Chocolate Carnival - July

The Dunedin Cadbury Chocolate Carnival is an event held annually during the second week of the July school holidays. Run in partnership with Cadbury Ltd and the Dunedin City Council, the aim of the Cadbury Chocolate Carnival is to celebrate winter in Dunedin with chocolate by showcasing great chocolate themed events throughout the city that appeal to people of all ages. There is something for everyone to enjoy. The Carnival celebrates 12 years in 2012 and to date has raised $400,000 for charities throughout Otago and New Zealand. ### Moro Marathon Dunedin - September

The Moro Marathon also includes a Half Marathon and a Half Marathon Recreational Walk. Established in 1979, it is one of the most scenic Marathons in New Zealand. The Marathon starts close to the Albatross Colony on the Otago Peninsula, runs around the beautiful Otago Harbour before finishing at Watson Park, Port Chalmers. Held in early spring the race experiences cool but fine weather, perfect for the Marathon and Half Marathon. Refer Regional Map Page 37.

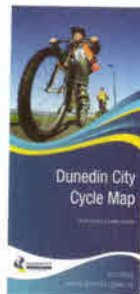

Activities and Attractions in this section can be located on the maps on pages 56 & 57 using the grid reference marked on each advertisement.

Cycling in Dunedin City

Dunedin offers a great variety of cycling opportunities within the city, on the Otago Peninsula, and on the well-developed mountain bike tracks around the city.

A series of pamphlets issued by the DCC community recreation services offers a good description of the mountain biking tracks that are available for the recreational cyclist and those who like an exciting challenge. Most tracks are close to the centre of town in the 'green belt' and are easily accessible from town.

Mountain Bike Tracks in Dunedin City

Dunedin is a biker's playground. The summer climate is perfect for mountain biking, with mild temperatures and a late setting sun. The city features a compact layout and a flat run for commuting in the city, as well as a number of great mountain biking tracks and views from the surrounding peaks.

Mountain Biking at Dunedin NZ's Brighton Beach

Jubilee Park is a 'fun', safe and easy circuit with options for more challenging sections, so is suitable for families and groups with a range of skills and is a great walking and mountain bike track. The track is dirt and gravel and ranges in elevation from 80 - 120m.

The "Silver Stream Water Race Track" provides an opportunity to explore history while enjoying nature. The tracks are colour coded and range from moderate to hard. More information is available from the pamphlet.

For the more adventurous the 'Fat Tyre Trails' pamphlet suggests a variety of rides. The tracks offer a range of complexities and length of rides for those who are fairly fit to really fit with distances of 28km through to 70km.

Signal Hill Reserve Mountain Biking Area

Signal Hill Reserve has tracks colour coded so that riders can select from the range offered. Yellow markers indicate easy tracks with grades up to the red marked tracks, which are considered challenging. Tracks may be straight or winding and can have various obstacles to negotiate such as jumps or rocks. Some great steep tracks - a huge adrenalin rush for the fearless mountain biker! The tracks have interesting names that will inspire the energetic mountain biker such as the 'gut', 'dogleg', 'rollercoaster', the 'switchback' and the 'haggis basher'.

Mountain Bike Tracks on the Otago Peninsula

Kareta Road: A four wheel drive track across farmland giving fantastic coastal views and leads from Smalls Beach to Kareta Road.

Buskin Road: A track linking Highcliff Road to Boulder Beach over farmland and can be a loop track incorporating Paradise or Braidwood Roads. This is a recognised mountain bike ride in Dunedin and provides magnificent coastal views.

Cyclists on the Otago Peninsula

Paradise Road: Another track over farmland from Highcliff Road to Boulder Beach with equally magnificent coastal views and native vegetation. Also a recognised mountain bike ride.

Camp Road: This road links Larnach Castle with Broad Bay and gives pleasant views over Broad Bay and the Otago Harbour. A great way to incorporate a visit to the historic Larnach Castle with a mountain bike ride and get some fantastic views of the countryside at the same time.

Middlemarch

The Otago Central Rail Trail is New Zealand's original great ride, winding 151km between Middlemarch and Clyde. For more information refer to Middlemarch page 39.

Heritage town

Originally named Koputai by Kai Tahu, Port Chalmers became an important trading port for sealers and whalers in the early 19th century. By 1863 it was the third largest port in Australasia, fuelled by the Otago gold rush.

It went on to farewell the first cargo of refrigerated meat in 1882, and the likes of Robert Falcon Scott and Ernest Shackleton as they embarked on their Antarctic expeditions. The wealth of the port, and the role it played in shaping early New Zealand, is reflected in its fine collection of bluestone buildings and rich maritime history.

Our beautiful environment

By car, on foot or by horseback, Port Chalmers and the surrounding bays offer dramatic views of Otago's harbour and coastal landscape. The natural deepwater port is a prime salmon fishing spot, and the harbour's sheltered bays are perfect for kayaking and rowing.

Just fifteen minutes drive to the south or north, and you'll find isolated white sand beaches sweeping around the Pacific coastline. Or you can head up the steep hill road above Port and visit the fenced native wildlife sanctuary of Orokonui.

Closer to the town, there are numerous native bushwalks rich with birdsong, and winding streets full of old cottages and villas, which offer an insight into how the Otago harbourside once was.

Port culture

Port Chalmers was put on the New Zealand art map by its most famous resident, artist Ralph Hotere. But if you dig a little deeper you'll discover a vibrant range of art and culture from potters and sculptors to musicians, jewellers and fashion designers.

Supporting this creative community is an eclectic mix of galleries, design boutiques, antique stores, cafes and restaurants, many of which are housed in the port's original historic buildings.

Otago Peninsula

Otago Peninsula from Mount Cargill

"In my opinion, the Otago Peninsula is the finest example of eco-tourism in the world". Sir David Bellamy

Otago Peninsula

The Otago Peninsula (19000ha), stretching along the southern edge of the Otago harbour is an easy drive from central Dunedin. A wonderfully scenic trip will see you passing lush green pastures, small bays and inlets, sandy beaches, rugged hills and volcanic landforms. So near to a major city centre, yet so far removed from the hectic pace of city living.

The Otago Peninsula is arguably New Zealand's most renowned eco-tourism area. There are unique opportunities to view a remarkable range of wildlife including Royal Albatross, blue penguins and the rare yellow-eyed penguins, a variety of seals, water and wading birds.

Explore the peninsula's well preserved and colourful history. Larnach Castle, Glenfalloch Woodland Gardens and the Disappearing Gun at Taiaroa Head are just some of the highlights of any visit.

Discover the talents of current residents when you visit the galleries, studio and craft shops that dot the small townships and bays.

Otago Peninsula's cafes and restaurants offer a good selection of food at reasonable prices and the opportunity to sample some of New Zealand's award winning Central Otago wines.

A variety of accommodation styles to suit all budgets is available on the Otago Peninsula. Stay a little longer and enjoy the hospitality found at our Bed and Breakfasts, Farmstays, Homestays, Motels and Self-Contained units, Cottages, Backpackers, Lodges and Camping Grounds.

A round tour of the peninsula is approximately 64km. You may choose to travel the harbourside road out to Taiaroa Heads and return to Dunedin via the high road. Highcliff Road offers magnificent coastal and city views as well as numerous photo opportunities.

A request to visitors: we want you to enjoy your time on the Otago Peninsula and so we would ask that you show consideration to other people driving on the roads by using the various parking bays that are provided allowing sightseeing opportunities.

The Otago Peninsula roads are popular with pedestrians and cyclists, for this reason we urge caution when driving.

There are a number of optional detours and walks for those with time to spare - and the time is always well spent. Wildlife and their natural habitats are precious and access to tracks and viewing areas is given with permission of landowners. As the saying goes - take nothing but photographs, leave nothing but footprints.

For those wishing to sit back, relax and enjoy the coastal scenery, there is a variety of wildlife and scenic tours available, either by land or harbour cruises. Bookings can be made for these at the Dunedin i-Site Visitor Centre Phone (03) 474 3300.

Where can you camp on the Otago Peninsula? Camping is permitted in designated camping grounds - camping is not permitted on reserves.

Only self-contained campervans (compliant with NZS5465:2001) can stay on public land and DCC carparks for up to two consecutive nights at one site, as long as there are no more than three campervans within a 50m radius and it is legally parked (no parking on grass). There is a recently produced DCC pamphlet available to you, refer page 34.

Otago Peninsula Map

THE OTAGO PENINSULA is one of New Zealand's finest tourist areas, with unique opportunities to view wildlife and some unusual historic features. Visitors are always welcome on the Peninsula, and residents enjoy sharing their splendid natural surroundings with others. In return visitors are asked to treat the area with care and consideration, and to remember that access to private property is at the discretion of the land owner.

Q TRACKS. There are a number of walking tracks on the Otago Peninsula, crossing public and private land. The Dunedin City Council Parks and Recreation Department's map, details 20 of these tracks, and is available from the Royal Albatross Centre at Taiaroa Head. Those using the tracks are asked to remember that crossing through many private properties is a privilege, not a right.

The Penguin Beach Experience & The Sheep Shed Combo... A must do for the whole family while in Dunedin.

Gates open at 10am with tours operating throughout the day.
 Bookings recommended to avoid disappointment.

Natures Wonders is a Reid family conservation effort.

The Otago Peninsula headland is arguably the most precious wildlife habitat in New Zealand and the farm owned by the Reid family is right on the forefront of this headland.

Here amongst truly spectacular scenery, significant breeding colonies of wildlife including the world's rarest penguins, the yellow-eyed, the little blue penguins, the New Zealand fur seals, sea lions and a large variety of birdlife all live in harmony. Natures Wonders is also a yellow eyed penguin sanctuary.

Wildlife Tour

Travel on an 8-wheel drive all terrain vehicle for an exhilarating cross country tour, taking in panoramic views of the peninsula and rugged coast. See spectacular wildlife, cormorants and little blue penguins during nesting season. Fur seals, and the world's rarest penguin - the yellow eyed. Our tours begin from 10.15am daily and run at regular intervals throughout the day, until one hour before dusk in all weather. Tour times can vary and are subject to availability, so booking is advisable.

The tour duration is one hour and visitors must report 30 minutes prior to departure. Group minimum is 2.

The Sheep Shed

From the moment you enter the sheep shed you know: 'this is the real deal'! Take in the energy and excitement of the sheep being mustered in from the paddocks by the dogs. Watch an experienced shearer skillfully remove the fleece and inspect the fleece as its cleaned and compacted ready for sale. Learn about the unique qualities and types of wool and what they are manufactured into. Contact us for tour times. The tour duration is 45 minutes.

Café

A view to dine for, either inside or out. Open 7 days from 10am. Fully licensed. Sample real New Zealand foods: sandwiches, panini's, burgers, chips, light meals, salads, cakes. Conference facilities available with all amenities.

Cameras are a must but flashes for wildlife photos are not permitted. The guide carries binoculars to aid viewing. Tours are suitable for people with limited mobility and all levels of fitness. Transport to and from Natures Wonders is available on request (at an additional cost).
