Infobroschüre: Einzigartiges, Spektakuläres Dunedin

Middlemarch

In der I-Site entdeckt

Teil 2

A 1 hour scenic drive from Dunedin on State Highway 87 will bring you to the Strath Taieri and Middlemarch, a close-knit farming community that welcomes visitors to experience their lifestyle and explore the dramatic scenery surrounding them. From the top of the Rock and Pillar Range, where you can find the Giant Weta (Hemideina maori), to schist tors lower down, where you will discover the Otago and Grand skinks and the New Zealand Falcon, you will continually be amazed and delighted by what you will see here.

Take a walk through tussock and rock tors to Sutton Salt Lake, New Zealand's only inland salt lake. It is 30cm deep at its highest and is often dry. (1 and a quarter hours return).

The Rock and Pillar Range (summit 1450m) provides a playground for trampers and cross-country skiers with small huts dotted in the area (www.doc.govt.nz for more info).

Trout fishing is a must at Taieri River, New Zealand's 3rd longest river (318km). With many access points, you are sure to find a secluded spot where the fish are biting.

Travel via the Taieri Gorge Railway to complete the experience! The Train takes you all the way back to Dunedin via the start of the Otago Central Railway at Wingatui. It leaves either from Middlemarch or Pukerangi (19km south of Middlemarch) and runs several times a week. Transport can be arranged from Middlemarch to Pukerangi. Travelling by train is a relaxing way to travel and the scenic route includes the 437m long Salisbury Tunnel and the 197m long Wingatui Viaduct, to name a few of the many attractions along this route.

The Middlemarch museum is situated in the former Masonic Lodge building in Aberafon St. It houses a comprehensive collection of local history and interests, including simulated static displays. Opening on request, it also boasts "Platypus" a submarine designed for the recovery of gold from river beds, first tested in 1874.

Otago Central Rail Trail • Middlemarch

The Otago Central Rail Trail, New Zealand's original great ride, can be walked, cycled or horseback ridden and has the advantage of no cars or hills and is free. You can take as little or as long as you like to complete the Rail Trail and with so many great places to see along the way, it is well worth taking a leisurely tour. The Rail Trail itself provides a wonderful and unique insight into railway engineering of the early 20th Century with fantastic bridges (over 60), viaducts and tunnels to see and explore. The Rail Trail is also very flexible in that if you have little time, day trips can be made as access to the Rail Trail is easy from the main highways.

The Otago Central Rail Trail winds 151km from Clyde to Alexandra and then down through the Manuhenikia & Ida Valleys until it reaches Middlemarch, situated on the Strath Taieri. The Otago Central Railway originally branched from the main trunk at Wingatui, 12 kilometres south of Dunedin, and ran through Middlemarch, Ranfurly, Omapere and Alexandra to Cromwell in the heart of Central Otago, 235 km from the junction. Construction was protracted, commencing in 1879 at the Dunedin end and not completed to Cromwell until 1921. At various points travellers can break their journey to experience the blue sky, barren landscape and sense of history. Be sure to also sample the legendary hospitality that the locals are rightly famous for. Stay a few days, you will be made most welcome.

Dunedin's Scottish Heritage & Shopping

"The people are Scotch. They stopped here on their way from home to heaven, thinking they had arrived", Mark Twain

With the arrival in 1848 of the vessels "John Wickliffe", "Philip Laing", "Blundell" & "Bernicia", the settling of Dunedin had finally begun.

Originally named New Edinburgh, the name was changed to Dunedin, Dunedin being the old Celtic name for Edinburgh.

George Rennie, a wealthy Scot was one of the original backers for a new Scottish settlement in New Zealand. In 1842 he enlisted the help of William Cargill and the Reverend Thomas Burns to promote the proposed settlement.

1843 saw turmoil in the Presbyterian Church in Scotland. The Disruption as it was known, effectively split the Church in half. The Free Church of Scotland was formed and withdrew from the Established Kirk of Scotland. Both the Rev. Thomas Burns and William Cargill joined with the Free Church of Scotland and, in association with Edward Wakefield and his New Zealand Company, started the daunting task of planning and selling the new settlement to investors and prospective settlers.

Land was purchased from three local Maori chiefs in 1844 and by the end of 1846 the survey of the future Dunedin had been completed by Charles Kettle. As he had spent time in Edinburgh, he used many of its names and places in the new Dunedin.

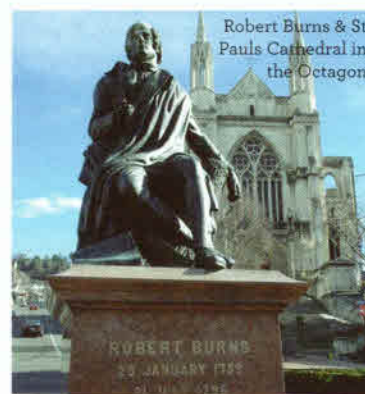

As a result of the high unemployment in Scotland brought about by the clearances of the Highlands, as well as general social unrest in Britain, interest in the scheme steadily increased. After many delays, November 1847 saw the departure from Gravesend of the first vessel, the "John Wickliffe".

On the 23rd November 1873, the wooden church at Bell Hill was replaced with the splendid stone First Church that had been designed by the architect R A Lawson. Along with their strong religious beliefs, the Scottish settlers brought their passion for education. The first university in New Zealand, the University of Otago, being opened in 1869.

Today, the Scottish influence is still apparent in Dunedin; the famous poet Robert Burns statue is prominently sited in the Octagon, the City's centre.

Dunedin has evolved it's own lively, ritualistic and colourful Haggis Ceremony performed for groups by the Piping Hot Haggis performers.

Make a point of visiting the shops that cater for those interested in Scottish heritage; tartans, haggis and souvenirs are available. Of special appeal for Dunedin's Caledonian Societies and Burns Club members, Scottish Week is a must for everyone who is a Scot at heart - ochayel!

Writers Walk 22 Plaques

Dunedin is renowned as New Zealand's literacy and artistic city, with many of this country's greatest writers and artists having direct connections to the region. To name just a few, writers, Janet Frame, James K Baxter, Dennis Glover and artists Colin McCahon and Ralph Hotere were all proudly influenced by a city which has poet Robert Burns' statue at its centre. A literary walk of fame with 22 plaques, acknowledging these and other acclaimed Dunedin writers encircles the upper Octagon.

The city features some of New Zealand's finest bookstores:

- The University Book Shop, in its iconic Great King St premises, is a booklover's paradise. With a large range of contemporary fiction and non-fiction, literature, textbooks and academic publications, along with unique gifts and quirky stationery, it truly is a real bookshop. Incorporating The Children's Room, a specialist children's bookshop within the store.
- Scribes Books, handily located in close proximity to Otago University and Otago Polytechnic, Scribes offers a wide selection including, fiction, children's books, science fiction, nautical, sports, adventure, sea, marine, aeronautical and much more.
- Hard to Find Books, the legendary book store situated on Dowling St, city centre. With over 250,000 books shelved over 1,000 square metres, this is New Zealand's largest single bookshop. From the rare to the recent Hard to Find Books covers all interests.

Restaurants • Cafés • Bars

You are about to enjoy one of the most dynamic and delightful dining experiences in New Zealand. Dunedin has an impressive and extensive selection of restaurants, cafes, and bars where you will find the very best of our local produce prepared and served with a quest to excel and our world famous 'southern hospitality'. Many establishments have won national awards, testimony to the level of excellence they have achieved with their cuisine, coffees and wines, including the internationally acclaimed Central Otago Wines. The freshest of ingredients are drawn from Dunedin's varied natural surroundings, from the plains to the hills, coasts, mountains, rivers, forests, countryside and rich seas, Dunedin justifiably boasts a wealth of local produce.

Menus may also be viewed online.

...Dunedin captures the hearts of locals and travellers alike. It's a surprisingly artsy town, and has many great bars and eateries...

Southern surfing throughout Otago and Southland offers some of the most challenging and rewarding surf breaks to be found anywhere in the country.

From fun beach breaks just minutes away from the city centre, through to long lazy point breaks on the North Coast to numerous gnarly reefs, points and beach breaks, the range and quality has a bit of something for everyone - from learners through to experienced thrill-seekers wanting to put everything on the line, including some recently explored low-breaks.

Geographically the area is wide open to big Southern Ocean swells ranging consistently from 1m-3m, but 4m to 6m-plus waves are a regular occurrence throughout the year, the reason why the Rex Von Huben memorial Big Wave contest is held here, usually in October and attracting a hard-core of the country's best to celebrate the life of a legendary Dunedin local.

A combination of east and north swells from tropical cyclones offers a similar wave quality around Dunedin's north coast, encompassing at least 10 breaks from Aramoana "Spit" through to Karitane fishing village, and some beyond. Combining the north and south coasts with beaches on the Otago Peninsula means there is rarely a day when the more persistent surfer can't find a break with an off-shore wind.

Crowds in the water are still at manageable levels outside the city breaks and it's not uncommon for a travelling crew to score primo surf to themselves at some of the more out-of-the way breaks. But taking your turn in the lineup is expected when numbers creep up.

For the adventurous, the Southern Scenic Route around The Catlins in South Otago provides ample opportunity for weekends away to explore a myriad of surf breaks, rest up at Kaka Point, go rock fishing, paua diving or take a break between tides with some stunning coastal track walks.

There's plenty of choice for accommodation, ranging from holiday parks, motels, homestays, backpackers and cribs (baches). From The Catlins its only a brief drive to Southland which again beckons with numerous breaks providing consistent surf opportunities. Try out the Riverton and Colac Bay breaks.

Be aware of the water temperature, spring suits in summer are a luxury and most people use summer steamers, backed up by a warmer winter suit, plus booties, gloves and helmet for the worst of June through to August. But don't despair, all the winter months have numerous calm, clear offshore days without a cloud in the sky - even if it is only 4 degC.

At its prominent clubrooms at St Clair beach, surfers are encouraged to make contact with the club which at various times offers coaching, beginner classes and judging courses, and maintains a hectic social calendar for its close knit members.
